Topic
California's Fourth Climate Change Assessment

While California is leading efforts to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, the State must also proactively address current and future impacts of climate change. The Fourth Assessment is part of California's comprehensive strategy to take action based on cutting-edge climate research. The Fourth Assessment addresses critical information gaps that decision-makers at the state, regional, and local levels need addressed in order to protect California's people, infrastructure, natural systems, working lands, and waters. This presentation will provide an overview of the Fourth Assessment and highlight key findings.
